Actual Delivery Date: 25/06/2019

Dissemination level: Confidential

Version: 1.0

Abstract

This deliverable is the M7-M12 Project review report, which details the progress made by the MEDEA consortium in three aspects. First, the report outlines the progress made in “monitor research and innovation projects with a view to recommending the uptake or the industrialisation of results”. Then the document reports the work performed towards “express common requirements as regards innovations that could fill in capability and other gaps and improve their performance in the future”. Finally, D8.13 present MEDEA’s perception to “indicates priorities as regards common capabilities, or interfaces among capabilities, requiring more standardization”.

Executive summary

MEDEA is a consortium which plans to evolve into a multidiscipline regional practitioners' network within a five-year period corresponding to project's duration. This report details the performed activities to identify research and innovation actions of interest to network members and approaches discussed and elaborated for identifying operational capability gaps. During the first six months, the project identified a series of innovative actions, which the MEDEA project would like to monitor their progress, and a number of practitioners' networks the MEDEA members think it will be beneficial to interact with.

D8.13 is the second MEDEA project review report. The first version of the report (D8.4) reported both the project and network related activities occurred during the first six months of the project. The current document will only report the network related activities performed between M6 (November 2018) and M12 (May 2019).

The second version of MEDEA project review report will document the progress made along the three axes of activity defined by the EC for the Pan-European and Regional networks. In addition, this report will also document relationships elaborated with additional innovative schemes (other networks and projects) which MEDEA network practitioners will benefit by interacting with them, and if possible, jointly (with members from other research actions) explore opportunities to co-organise events and bring practitioners and stakeholders from different projects and networks together.
